Preface to the April 2024 Edition

Since the initial edition of this customary in September 2023, I have received a great amount of feedback on the content it contains. Many people, ordained and lay, have been pleased and thankful for this attempt at what I hope is a useful tool in our common yet varied worship life. Many others, ordained and lay, have expressed concerns and / or dissatisfaction with elements of the document. And many others, ordained and lay, find themselves somewhere in the middle. With more than 175 worshipping communities and more than 500 priests and deacons in the Diocese of Virginia, I could not expect unanimity on the topics that it covers. I recognize and value the diversity of thought and practice that is this place.

I want the many members of the Diocese of Virginia to know that I have listened to the feedback that I have been given, prayed over it, and consulted with numerous individuals and groups. Having done that, I have incorporated a bit of new language and guidance in this edition, particularly in the areas of how we receive Holy Communion – language that I am sure will be received with the diversity of opinion with which was the original. And that is a good and holy thing.

I am thankful for the faithful leadership in this diocese around the ministry of corporate worship. The clergy in particular have a calling to this work, and to do it well, reverently, and with pastoral sensitivity – but that calling is not for those of us who wear clerical collars alone. The laity of this diocese share in this high calling, and I know through my experiences to date as your bishop that there are many faithful people in the congregations of Virginia who are committed to worship that gives glory to God and empowers us all to do the work we were created to do. So again, I thank you all.

Finally, let me say this – I trust the leaders of this diocese to do their very best. To try; to learn; and to live into that which we all have agreed to share. Not everyone or every church will worship the same way, and yet I know that we are all committed to the underlying principle that Common Worship binds us together as Episcopalians.

May God bless us in our offering of praise to the Almighty One who created us, sustains us, and loves us to our very core.

Yours in Christ,

The Right Reverend E. Mark Stevenson, Bishop of Virginia

Liturgical Expectations in the Diocese of Virginia

*We, who are many and diverse, come together in Christ through our worship, our common prayer.*¹

In addition to the 1979 Book of Common Prayer, other liturgical resources have been approved either for full or trial use by General Convention and may be used as directed. Clergy should familiarize themselves with these resources. Changes to approved liturgies should be done sparingly and purposefully and require the explicit permission of the Bishop. Clergy are also charged with providing formation opportunities for their congregations and communities to learn about and to engage with our tradition of common prayer.

The Revised Common Lectionary (as amended) is authorized for use in the Episcopal Church for Sundays and Holy Days. The 1979 Book of Common Prayer Daily Office Lectionary is authorized for its expressed purpose. Use of any other lectionaries require the explicit permission of the Bishop.

A list of liturgical resources authorized by the Episcopal Church, in addition to liturgy related facts and links, can be found at the website EpiscopalCommonPrayer.org.

Episcopalians in the Diocese of Virginia worship in many different styles, ranging from ancient to contemporary, formal to casual, etc. Yet all worship in the Episcopal Church is based on the principle of Common Prayer, giving worship a familiarity across our Diocese. Thus, worship in the Diocese should follow the acceptable rubrics of the Episcopal Church, in addition to being done purposefully and thoughtfully, regardless of the particular style of worship.

Communion Guidelines

When the COVID-19 outbreak occurred, there were immediate questions and concerns about how the virus was transmitted and the safety of gathering, and these questions and concerns necessarily impacted our liturgical practices, including communion distribution.

According to the Book of Common Prayer: “Opportunity should be given to every communicant to receive the consecrated bread and wine separately,” adding that “the ¹ "The Book of Common Prayer" in What We Believe, The Episcopal Church, <https://www.episcopalchurch.org/what-we-believe/book-common-prayer>.

Sacrament may [also] be received in both kinds simultaneously, in a manner approved by the Bishop” (pp. 407-408). The uncertainties that we faced early on in the pandemic, however, led most dioceses to restrict the manner in which consecrated wine was offered. In some dioceses the restriction was absolute, and only consecrated bread was offered. These decisions were not made lightly, and were motivated by a desire to err on the side of caution. Through it all, we were reminded by theologians and pastors alike from all over the world – including our Presiding Bishop, Michael Curry – that the Church has long held the understanding that receiving Communion in one kind is fully sufficient.

As we adjusted to the realities of the pandemic, we did so in faithful expectation of the day where we might reclaim full Eucharistic participation in a manner that upholds the covenantal relationships between bishops, priests, and people, and lives into our shared Eucharistic theology. Now that we find ourselves in what may be considered a post-pandemic reality, we ought once again revisit the guidelines for our communion practices.

Going forward, and in all cases, the health of our congregants and community members remains of the utmost concern, and certain circumstances will require special consideration, such as administering communion to persons in nursing homes, persons in hospitals, or persons with particular physical ailments.

- All baptized Christians are welcome to receive communion, in accordance with Canon I.17.7 of the General Convention. Episcopalians invite all baptized people to receive, not because we take the Eucharist lightly, but because we take our Baptism so seriously.
- Those who are not baptized Christians are welcome to come forward during communion to receive a blessing from a priest or bishop or prayers from a deacon or lay intercessor.
- At no time should a person be questioned at the point of receiving Holy Eucharist as to their baptismal status.
- Gluten-free hosts/bread may be offered as an alternative to gluten-full hosts/bread but should not be the only offering.
- A single chalice containing wine should be placed on the altar for the Eucharistic Prayer. One or more flagons or cruets containing wine may be placed on the altar as necessary, in order to fill any needed additional chalices at the conclusion of the Prayer.
- The common cup should be offered and received in the traditional fashion (i.e., sipping directly from the common cup) for each communicant by a clergy person or lay chalice bearer/administrator. The chalice shall be carefully wiped with a purificator where a communicant's mouth has made contact with the cup (inside and outside edge), rotating after each person receives.

- In 2020, a global public health coalition issued a report (found here) containing the following: Currently available data do not provide any support for the suggestion that the practice of sharing a common communion cup can contribute to the spread of COVID-19.
- In 2021, an epidemiological study written for the Anglican Church of Canada (found here) concluded the following: While it's true a shared cup could transmit infection through saliva, the risk is extremely low, with no documented cases of any disease ever being spread that way. In the case of COVID-19 the risk is even lower because it's spread by aerosols and droplets: the fact is, the risk of catching COVID is far greater from breathing air exhaled by an infectious person next to you than from sharing a common cup.
- The use of individual cups is no longer authorized. The common cup remains normative in the Episcopal Church as a matter of tradition and our shared sacramental theology.
- If intinction is made available, the clergy person or lay chalice bearer/ administrator should dip the edge of the host or bread in the wine and then carefully place it on the tongue or in the hand of the person receiving communion. Other procedures that live into the spirit of this direction may be developed in a local context. All efforts should be made to minimize the number of fingers potentially coming into contact with wine that is to be consumed by mouth.
 - The practice of intinction has long been discouraged by medical authorities due to its own risk potential. Clergy and chalice bearers can attest to the frequency with which communicants who intinct inadvertently dip their fingertips into the wine. Intinction then holds a higher risk than drinking directly from the common cup, because fingers (and fingernails) are a repository for pathogens not found in saliva. See “Eucharistic practice and the risk of infection” by David H. Gould found here.
- It should be made clear that all baptized persons may, but no person must, receive communion in both kinds to receive the fullness of Christ's body and blood. Our theology holds reception in one-kind (e.g., the bread alone) as full and complete.

These guidelines are written in an effort to comply with the expectations of the Canons of the General Convention, the Book of Common Prayer, and the traditions and Eucharistic theology of the Episcopal Church. We encourage you to reach out to the Bishop's Office with questions and concerns, and, as always, give great thanks for your perseverance and faithfulness in the face of our continually changing landscape.

Weddings

The Constitution and Canons of the Episcopal Church can be found here and provide guidance and directives for the celebration and blessing of a marriage (Canons 18 & 19). While the Constitution and Canons of the Episcopal Church in their entirety should be known and followed in the Diocese of Virginia, the following directives regarding marriage should be particularly noted.

- Clergy (including postulants and candidates for Holy Orders) shall not officiate a marriage outside of the episcopal liturgy without the explicit permission of the Bishop. Clergy should officiate as ministers of the Gospel.
- Members of the clergy must conform to state law governing marriage, in addition to the Canons relevant to marriage (Canon 18: Sec. 1).
- Prior to officiating a marriage, clergy must determine: (a) that both persons have the right to marry; (b) that at least one of the persons is baptized; and (c) that both persons have been instructed by the clergy, or a person known by the clergy . . . , in the nature, purpose, and meaning, as well as the rights, duties, and responsibilities of marriage (18: Sec. 3).
- Parties must sign the Declaration of Intention found in Canon 18: Section 4 prior to being married.
- A bishop or priest may pronounce a blessing upon a civil marriage using any of the liturgical forms authorized by the Church (18: Sec. 6).
- Where it is permitted by civil law that deacons may perform marriages, and no priest or bishop is available, a deacon may, with permission of the Bishop, perform such marriage, omitting the nuptial blessing (see BCP, p. 422). Deacons should consult with the Archdeacons prior to requesting the permission of the Bishop to officiate a wedding.
- Clergy must consult with and obtain the consent of the Bishop to marry a person who has been divorced per Canon 19: Sec. 3. The form for this process can be found in Appendix A.

Funerals

As the Book of Common Prayer reminds us, “The liturgy for the dead is an Easter liturgy. It finds all meaning in the resurrection. Because Jesus was raised from the dead, we too, shall be raised. The liturgy, therefore, is characterized by joy, in the certainty that ‘neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (p. 507). Our prayer book gifts us a beautiful liturgy to be offered at a tender time to congregants/community members and guests alike.

As stewards of the liturgy, pastors to our people, and representatives of The Episcopal Church, clergy should be well-prepared for all funerals that they officiate and/or participate in such that no clergy person should impede the beauty of the liturgy or the evangelism opportunity on offer with every funeral.

Chrism

As a reminder, chrism should be fresh. The bishop consecrates chrism every year and clergy should make a concentrated effort to have a fresh stock at all times.

Episcopal Visitations

Visitations are a joyful and vital component of our common life as a Diocese. They offer a unique opportunity for a congregation or community to focus on its mission and ministry while placing that mission and ministry within, and strengthening its connections to, the wider Body of Christ.

Currently, parishes should expect to receive a visitation every 12-24 months. The schedule for visitations is posted and kept updated on the Diocesan website: www.episcopalvirginia.org.

The following guidelines are meant to offer support to host congregations/communities so that preparations can be made to ensure that our time together is rich with fellowship and worship.

Pre-visit Preparation

In order to assist your preparation, please review and work through the Visitation Checklist (Appendix B). This and other relevant forms can be found in the Appendix and on the Diocese of Virginia website.

When announcing the visitation, please consider this an opportunity to teach your congregation/community about the Bishop's Office and Staff. Invite your congregation to explore the diocesan website (episcopalvirginia.org). Our time together will be enhanced by exposure to the purpose of diocesan ministry and its many resources and ministries.

Liturgical Guidelines

Ideally, the visitation will be rooted in Sunday worship. Please note that Sunday visitations are generally limited to one service between 9am and 3pm. The visiting bishop may be accompanied by a chaplain of their choosing.

Different bishops have distinct liturgical preferences and presences, and, where possible, these are outlined below, along with other necessary information.

- Liturgical texts authorized by the Episcopal Church should be used in the service during the visit.
- The Propers of the Day are used for Sunday visits, unless a Major or Patronal Feast is appropriate, except under extraordinary circumstances and with the consent of the Bishop.
- The Revised Common Lectionary dictates the readings for the day.
- Bulletins should be sent to the visiting bishop at least two weeks prior to the visit and should clearly indicate which lessons will be read during the service.
- Altar hangings and vestments should be coordinated with the visiting bishop.
 - The bishop will bring his/her/their own vestments.
- Many bishops prefer to officiate from a chair placed west (liturgically) of the altar.
- The bishop's visitation always includes the Holy Eucharist with the bishop as celebrant and preacher (unless discussed and approved in advance).
- A lavabo bowl and towel should be made available; a pall for the chalice should be used during the Eucharist.
- A lapel microphone is preferred.
- A parish forum is highly encouraged after the service.
 - For Bishop Stevenson's visitations:
 - Eucharistic Prayer I, A, B, or D should be used. Authorized inclusive / expansive language versions of any of these Prayers may be used as well. If a different Eucharistic Prayer is desired, please make that request at least four weeks prior to the visitation so that a conversation with the bishop may be scheduled.
 - For Bishop Harris' visitations:
 - Any liturgical texts authorized by the Episcopal Church may be used, including the inclusive language Rite II text authorized in 2018 if that is the custom of the congregation/community.
 - A 16-18 pt font version of the liturgy for her use should be provided.
 - If chanting is involved, the fully printed chant setting should be provided at least one week in advance.
- Sacramental rites happen within the context of the Eucharist. When there are no sacramental rites, the service should include the Renewal of Baptismal Vows (BCP, p. 292) in place of the Nicene Creed.
- For Baptism
 - The bishop, when present, is the celebrant; and is expected to preach the Word and preside at Baptism and the Eucharist. The priest of the parish or community may do the actual Baptism, if requested for pastoral reasons; otherwise, the bishop performs the actual Baptism. The bishop officiates at the Presentation and Examination of Candidates; says the Thanksgiving over the Water (even if the priest of the parish performs the Baptism), consecrates the Chrism, where applicable, reads the prayer, and officiates at what follows.

- Where the baptized person is an adult, the bishop will confirm them immediately after Baptism.
- For Confirmation, Receptions, and Reaffirmations
 - For both Bishop Stevenson and Bishop Harris, Confirmands, etc., kneel before the bishop who remains seated. The bishop's chair will need to be positioned accordingly. If a Confirmand is unable to kneel, or prefers for personal reasons not to kneel, they may remain standing and the bishop will stand for the laying on of hands.
 - Posture for the candidates when other bishops are presiding should be coordinated with that particular bishop.
 - Bishop Stevenson:
 - The first prayer for Confirmation is used: "Strengthen, O Lord, your servant N. with your Holy Spirit..."
 - Bishop Harris:
 - The second prayer for Confirmation is used: "Defend, O Lord, your servant N. with your heavenly grace..."
- Please note that the use of "Alleluia" for the dismissal is not appropriate outside of Eastertide.

Where two or more parishes/communities come together for a visitation, they are encouraged to work together to plan and staff the worship service.

Please see Sample Orders of Service (Appendix G) for assistance in planning and more details.

Post-Service

Please review the Visitation Checklist (Appendix B) for instructions on submitting the necessary forms and Bishop's Discretionary Fund loose plate offerings.

Appendix A | Petition to the Bishop for Consent to Solemnize a Marriage After Divorce or Annulment

When Clergy are asked to preside at the marriage of a couple of which one or both of the parties has previously been married, Clergy must submit to the Bishop a petition to Solemnize a Marriage after Divorce. If one or both of the parties has been divorced more than once, the clergy person must refer the couple to a professional counselor who has the skill to determine if the issues that caused the dissolution of the marriages have been rectified and if the parties can enter into the sacrament of marriage fully committed to its responsibilities. Clergy should provide ample time prior to the planned wedding to counsel the couple and, if necessary, to refer them to a counselor. Early during premarital preparation, Clergy should review the necessary requirements for the Bishop's consent for solemnizing a remarriage (listed in the form below), especially examining the final decree(s) of divorce or annulment.

The petition must be submitted to the Bishop's Office no later than one month before the wedding date to ensure adequate time for the Bishop's review. The Bishop will respond with either approval or denial of the petition. If you are petitioning the Bishop for permission to preside at a remarriage, you should not consent to do the marriage until the Bishop's consent is received.

Send the completed petition to the Office of the Bishop:

Also note other activities, before or after the service, to which you would like to invite the bishop (e.g., vestry meeting, search committee meeting, reception/luncheon, Sunday school visit, adult education time, special event, etc.). Bishops often have more time after the service than prior, therefore post-service options are encouraged. Bishop Stevenson particularly encourages a parish forum after the service.

Appendix E | Guidelines for the Rites of Initiation

Sequence and Interrelationship

“Holy Baptism is full initiation by water and the Holy Spirit into Christ’s body the Church” (Book of Common Prayer, p. 298), every baptized person is welcome to receive Holy Communion. The normal sequence, therefore, in the administration of the Initiatory Rites is Holy Baptism, Holy Communion, and Confirmation.

While Baptism is the rite that welcomes the initiate into Communion with God in Christ, Confirmation is the means whereby the mature Christian reaffirms his/her/their Baptismal Vows, makes a personal commitment to Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, and covenants to share actively in the Church's mission. This mission is clearly defined in the biblical imperative, “Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to the whole creation” (Mark 16:15).

Holy Baptism

The prerequisites for Holy Baptism are as follows:

For an infant: the expressed desire of the parent(s) or guardian(s).

For a pre-adolescent child: his/her/their own expressed desire, along with the consent of the parent(s) or guardian(s).

For an adolescent young person or adult: his/her/their own expressed desire.

An appropriate program of catechetical instruction before the administration of Holy Baptism is appropriate, and the newly baptized, where applicable, should be encouraged to participate fully in the regular Christian education program of the Church following the Baptism.

Discipline for the Administration of Holy Baptism

The Episcopal Church recognizes the universality of Christian baptism regardless of the method of administration, the age of the recipient, or the denomination of the officiant, provided that it be administered with water in the Name of the Trinity. If these basic requirements have been met, the rite may not be repeated since re-baptism calls into question the certainty of God's promise and also indicates a lack of respect for other denominations within the Body of Christ.

Since advance preparation is of primary importance, clergy, as a matter of pastoral judgement, may deny or defer the Sacrament of Holy Baptism in the case of any who will not consent to counseling and instruction, who have no intent of entering into the full life of the worshipping community, or who, for valid reasons, have previously been refused the rite by another member of the clergy.

Since the baptismal rite is intended to be administered within the Eucharist during a principal service of worship in the presence of the congregation where the candidate will become a participating member, private Baptism, whether at church or at home, is strongly discouraged except where there are extenuating circumstances. We encourage Baptism in the congregation where the person and/or family will be active. Sensitive pastoral insight will be required in circumstances where, for legitimate reason, the Baptism may take place in a congregation other than the local community, and the clergy involved should not overlook this opportunity to convey the true meaning of Baptism as initiation not only into the universal church, but also into a local community of worshipping and witnessing Christians.

As indicated in the Book of Common Prayer (p. 312), it is appropriate that whenever possible Holy Baptism be administered on the following days:

the Bishop's visitation, except when it occurs during Lent
the Day of Pentecost
All Saints' Day or the Sunday after All Saints' Day
the Feast of the Baptism of our Lord
Easter Vigil (an occasion especially suited for the Baptism of adults)

In accordance with the Book of Common Prayer, the bishop, when present, is the celebrant; and is expected to preach the Word and preside at Baptism and the Eucharist. The priest of the parish or community may do the actual Baptism, if requested for pastoral reasons; otherwise, the bishop performs the actual Baptism. The bishop officiates at the Presentation and Examination of Candidates; says the Thanksgiving over the Water (even if the priest of the parish performs the Baptism), consecrates the Chrism, where applicable, reads the prayer, and officiates at what follows.

Reception of Holy Communion for Children and Youth

Baptized children may receive Holy Communion when accompanied by a parent, caregiver, or sponsor able to assist the child in discernment of the Lord's presence in a manner appropriate to the child.

Since there is no determinant age for admission to the Holy Communion, the decision in each situation must best be reached by parents/caregivers and child(ren) in consultation with the parish clergy. Care should be taken not to establish a set or minimum age, however, lest admission to the Lord's Table become merely "the thing to do," a rite of passage for youth of a certain age.

For the following reasons, it is the policy of the Diocese of Virginia to permit the admission of baptized young people to the Holy Communion for the following reasons:

The Holy Communion is God's "free gift" whose reception is not dependent upon one's intellectual understanding, but rather on the discernment of faith within the community of faith. That discernment takes different forms appropriate to a person's age.

Some parents are desirous that their children at an early age share fully in the Eucharistic fellowship.

Regular reception of the Holy Communion will enhance the younger child's growing awareness of his/her/their participation in the Christian community and of the abundance of God's nourishing love.

Letters of transfer should clearly indicate when baptized persons, not confirmed, have been accustomed to receiving the Holy Communion. By the same token, baptized children who have been properly admitted to the Holy Communion elsewhere are entitled to receive the sacrament in any Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Virginia.

Confirmation, Reception, and Reaffirmation of Baptismal Vows

In accordance with the Book of Common Prayer, there are three Episcopal rites which are properly designated as the "Laying on of Hands."

In the bishop, by virtue of their office, resides the fullness of ministry, responsibility and authority committed by Christ to his Church. The bishop, is, therefore, the guardian of truth, custodian of the sacraments, and symbol of unity. Since the bishop acts for the one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church, it is proper that candidates presented for Confirmation, Reception, and Reaffirmation receive the Episcopal laying on of hands.

Only those persons who have been baptized with water in the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit may be presented for Confirmation, Reception, and Reaffirmation. The minister preparing candidates for the laying on of hands is responsible for ascertaining that each of them has been properly baptized.

The minister or catechist in charge of instructing candidates for the laying on of hands is expected to clarify the three specific purposes of Confirmation, Reception, and Reaffirmation and to determine which of these rites would be most appropriate for each person desiring to be presented to the bishop.

It is the custom in the Diocese of Virginia to use the Episcopal laying on of hands for all three rites of Confirmation, Reception, and Reaffirmation.

Confirmation

Confirmation is for those who wish to express a mature public affirmation of their faith, recommit themselves to the responsibilities of their Baptism, AND who fall into one of the following categories:

- were baptized as infants/children
- were baptized as adults but who were not simultaneously confirmed by a bishop and who did not receive the Episcopal laying on of hands
- were baptized and confirmed in a denomination other than:
 - another province of the Anglican Communion
 - the Orthodox Church
 - the Roman Catholic Church
 - the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America
 - the Old Catholic Church
 - the Philippine Independent Church
 - the Mar Thoma Syrian Church of Malabar
 - the Moravian Church in America

The primary intent of Confirmation is to provide one the occasion, in the presence of the bishop and the gathered community, to profess Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior and to invoke God's help through the Holy Spirit to live as a witnessing Christian in the world.

The bishop should be assured that those presented for Confirmation have demonstrated a personal understanding of the Christian faith, have been instructed in Christian doctrine and discipline, and are able to make a personal confession of their faith. It is expected, too, that candidates for Confirmation will be prepared to undertake a disciplined ministry in the mission of the Church.

Youth Confirmation

In recent time, it has been customary to present young people for Confirmation at an age that has been used historically to mark the division between childhood and the taking on of the increasing responsibilities of adulthood. But our culture no longer recognizes so clear a line of division and instead allows young people to enter into an extended period of "no-longer-a-child/not-yet-an-adult," during which we see young people at different paces becoming clearer on who they are and what they want their values to be. It seems desirable to consider the end of this period in young people's lives, rather than the onset of it, as the appropriate time to offer the opportunity of making the commitment to faith represented by Confirmation.

It is, therefore, important to wait until an age when the individual may clearly express his/her/their own desire to affirm faith. It is during the years from twelve to sixteen that individuals work out their identity and it is to be hoped that their life in the community of the church during that time will have prepared them to decide to assume mature responsibility for their faith. It is also at sixteen that young adults are encouraged to take their responsibility in government of the church by voting for vestry members (Canon 11, Section 3).

Individuals do work out their identity at different paces and different ages, therefore, no guidelines will be set by the Diocese of Virginia for fixing an age for Confirmation, but clergy, catechists, and parents/caregivers are urged to consider the rationale of Confirmation being normative for those of high school years or older.

The entire Christian community needs to be made aware of their responsibility to lead each young person to make an individual and mature decision to present himself/herself/themselves to the bishop for Confirmation as directed by the Book of Common Prayer:

In the course of their Christian development, those baptized at an early age are expected, when they are ready and have been duly prepared, to make a mature public affirmation of their faith and commitment to the responsibilities of their baptism and to receive the laying on of hands by the bishop (p. 412).

Reception

All Christians of the following denominations who have been baptized with water and in the name of the Trinity, who have as adults made a prior affirmation of their baptismal vows, and who wish to be received “into the fellowship of this Communion,” shall be presented to the bishop for Reception.

- another province of the Anglican Communion
- the Orthodox Church
- the Roman Catholic Church
- the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America
- the Old Catholic Church
- the Philippine Independent Church
- the Mar Thoma Syrian Church of Malabar
- the Moravian Church in America

The bishop should be assured that candidates for Reception possess a personal understanding of the Christian faith, are able to make a personal confession of their faith, have been instructed in Christian doctrine and discipline, and are acquainted with the ethos, history, and background of the Anglican heritage. Each candidate should also be prepared to undertake a disciplined ministry in the mission of the Church.

Persons desiring to be received into this Church should be informed about the nature of the bishop's office as chief pastor and as symbol of unity. The catechist should also stress the importance of following the bishop's godly advice and admonitions when he/she/they speaks in accordance with the canons and discipline of the Episcopal Church.

Reaffirmation

Baptized persons who have made a mature public affirmation of faith and who later desire for significant reasons to renew their commitment to God before a bishop and in the presence of the congregation, shall be presented for Reaffirmation.

The bishop should be assured that all candidates presented for Reaffirmation have a personal understanding of the Christian faith, have been instructed in basic Christian doctrine and discipline, and are able to make a personal confession of their faith. Each candidate should also be prepared to undertake a disciplined ministry in the mission of the Church.

The act of Reaffirmation implies a decisiveness quite separate from the affirmation of faith one makes during corporate worship or in one's daily resolve to follow Christ. The candidate for Reaffirmation should, therefore, be encouraged to take this step only after serious prayer and self-examination leading to an inner awareness of a renewed commitment to God.

Unlike Confirmations and Receptions, Reaffirmations should not be registered in the Parish Register.

Letters of Transfer/Certificates of Membership

Letters of Transfer (“Certificates of Membership” in Canon), when issued, are to indicate a “Confirmed” status for those persons who have been presented for Reception and have received the laying on of hands.
